Russians Urge German Unity, Suggest Parley

One Constitution Proposed
 In Note Handed U.S. Envoy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—Russia tonight proposed a meeting of the Foreign Ministers of the United States, Britain and France on its Prague proposals for creation of an all-German Constitutional Council to unify Germany under one Government.

Such a proposal was handed U.S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk in Moscow tonight, the state department said. Kirk told the department that similar proposals would be given the French and British ambassadors.

The three diplomatic representatives had been called in separately to the Soviet Foreign Ministry.

Council Fails To Make Move On New Army

ROME, Nov. 3 (AP)—A rule of unanimity caused the European council's committee of foreign ministers to decide tonight against taking any action on a unified European army.

Britain opposed consideration of the issue by the committee. Ernest Davis of Britain did not oppose the idea of a unified army, but insisted the council, by its charter, is not competent to act on matters of defense. Since such an issue would require unanimous approval of all the 13 foreign ministers it was impossible to continue. The decision not to consider the unified army proposal was unanimous.

Three Die, One Missing In Two Days of Storms

Three men have died and one is still missing as a result of storms in Vancouver Island waters during the past two days.

Five others escaped to tell of a night-long struggle to reach safety after their boat was wrecked. Another man survived an all-night ordeal in a grounded fishing boat.

On the East Coast of the Island, 70-year-old Richard Fraser of Deep Bay died early yesterday in a fishing boat which grounded off Comox Spit.

In St. Joseph's Hospital at Courtenay is Matthew Pilbea, 65, owner of the grounded vessel Seawolf.

On the West Coast, Skipper Harry W. Martinich, 40, of Burnaby, died of a heart attack after his 46-foot seiner Delmar smashed on the rocks south of Pacheena Point.

The Delmar's cook, John Cane, of Vancouver, was drowned when he was minutes away from rescue. Huge waves swept him away from a cork line put out by a lifeboat.

The other five crew members from the Delmar, William Markle, Jack Lindsay, Walter Rayner, Stanley Forster and John Krones, reached the Carmanah Point lighthouse.

The Seawolf first grounded off Comox Spit about 3 p.m. Thursday, Pilbea said in hospital.

Where Red Drives Force Allies Back in Korea

On Korean west coast, U.S. troops were forced to withdraw 50 miles south and east to Chongju (1) to avoid entrapment. Pushing down from Unsan area (2) Reds knifed close to Kunin in large-scale offensive to trap elements of First Cavalry Division regiments. Marines, jumping off yesterday from Sudong in drive on Changjin reservoir (3), were threatened with encirclement by flank attacks (open arrows) in which Chinese Communists were reported taking part. South Koreans made slight gains past Kilchu (4) on east coast. By-passed Reds (5) were attacking near Wonsan and were reported to have isolated a Marine battalion at Majon (underlined).

Brigade Destination Question Confused by Reds' Resistance

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP)—Pierce Red resistance in Northern Korea tonight threw a long shadow over the question of the destination of Canada's 11,000-man special force.

Time was racing as the force moved out for going ahead with the old, still unrejected schedule for its movement into the Pacific to be ready to fight in Korea by next February. Under that schedule, it is due to sail in less than three weeks.

Earlier this week, however, it appeared to be virtually discarded. The new plan was to send the bulk of the brigade group to the United States for the winter and to Europe in 1951, possibly as a small division made up of two brigades, the second formed from the reinforcement pool.

Defence Minister Brooke Claxton was in Washington and reported making arrangements to send about 1,000 of the force to Korea for occupation duties, the rest to the United States. He was expected to make a statement yesterday or earlier. But the word Red uprisings in Korea intervened.

He flew home today and merely told reporters Canada is waiting for word "from day to day" on where and when the brigade should move.

The word would come from Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The minister said he had been in close touch in Washington with Defence Secretary George C. Marshall and other defence leaders, but couldn't disclose their views.

There is little doubt, officials said, that if Korean resistance continues for weeks the Canadian force will go there.

Embarkation leaves are due to end Tuesday and from then on the units will be ready and eager to go.

Canadian Advance Unit Arrives at Yokohama

Editor's Note: Dave McIntosh, Canadian Press staff writer who covered the advance party of Canada's special force, arrived in Yokohama today.

At Ottawa, Defence Minister Claxton said the Canadian Government is still awaiting word from day to day on how the United Nations will use the special force. It has been reported that only 1,000 of the 11,000 men will go to Korea, but the resurgence of Red resistance has made the question a fluid one.

The advanced troops, unaware they were headed for Korea until they docked here, made port after a smooth two weeks' crossing of the Pacific from Seattle aboard the United States transport James O'Hara.

The O'Hara will leave with them Sunday on the final leg of the sea trip to Korea, finally arriving at Pusan Tuesday.

NO DEFINITE PLANS
 It is expected the Canadians will be moved promptly into the area north of the 38th Parallel, though no definite plans were announced.

The advance party is made up of specialists as cooks, clerks, drivers and tradesmen needed to set up a camp for the Canadians following it to Korea.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Nov. 3 (CP)—Two Toronto men—Harry Rice, 27, and Ron Scott, a few years older—sailed for Cuba today on the first leg of a treasure trail to the South Sea.

Picking up a quest interrupted in 1939, they crossed the Bay of Fundy from Digby, N.S., and left Saint John in the Puga, a tiny, 20-foot craft equipped with sails and a small gasoline engine.

The adventurers said nothing about their plans but old newspaper files gave the background of the story.

In 1923, Harry's father, Maurice Rice, was cleaning an old pocket watch. In its back, he said, he found a tiny map and instructions on how to locate a hoard of gold bullion, rumored to be worth $50,000.

BOUGHT KETCH
 He bought the Casarco, a former sardine ketch and sailed from Dipper Harbor, N.B., in 1934. With him were Harry, then 11, the boy's mother and a brother, Derek.

For nearly a year the ketch battled Atlantic tides and squalls. They stopped briefly at Miami, Fla., and Havana, then were lost in ocean mist.

The Casarco was not heard of again until an amateur radio fan in Cuba picked up a faint S.O.S. one stormy night. For nine days Cuban Coast Guard vessels searched for the Casarco, drifting helplessly with her engine knocked-out and shipping water-beds. Mrs. Rice was seriously ill, and the drinking water was almost gone.

The battered vessel was sighted by the naval cutter Santa Clara and towed to the Cuban Port of Colonos, 150 miles from Havana.

The family began plans to start on the treasure hunt again but the World War interrupted them.

This summer, Harry and Scott came to New Brunswick and found what they considered a suitable craft.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP)—Defence Minister Brooke Claxton has asked that no information be issued on absenteeism and desertion among Canada's 11,000-man special force.

The Canadian Press submitted a series of written questions to the National Defence Public Relations Office concerning the number of absentees and deserters. The answer was: "No information."

Marine Battalions Encircled by Reds

U.S. Positions Penetrated
 By Chinese Communists

WITH U.S. MARINES IN NORTHEAST KOREA, Nov. 4 (Saturday) (AP)—Chinese Communists today cut off two United States Marine battalions north of Sudong after penetrating positions of the attacking 7th Marine Regiment.

An official source said tonight a Chinese roadblock was set up behind the two battalions.

The Marines, attacking north from Sudong, 30 miles south of the bitterly-defended Changjin Reservoir, encountered strong opposition, a 19th Corps officer said.

HEAVY FIRE
 He reported small arms and mortar fire raking the Leathernecks.

The forward Marine elements were being supplied by airdrops.

A 1st Marine Division spokesman said a third cut-off battalion near Majon, 16 miles west of Wonsan, was well dug in and in no danger.

He reported few North Koreans around the position.

A helicopter spotted a small force of Reds preparing to ambush a relief column heading for this battalion.

The pilot warned the convoy and convoy guards deployed to ambush the would-be ambushers while the convoy halted.

MANY ESCAPE
 At Seoul, escape of at least half of a trapped United States regiment was disclosed today and the Communist counter-drive in Northwest Korea, which sprang the trap, moved to a halt.

South Korean troops held fast at Kunu, 47 miles north of the fallen enemy capital of Pyongyang—the point of deepest penetration by Chinese and North Korean troops.

A U.S. Eighth Army spokesman said action was limited Friday night. In contrast with recent days which saw heavy Red attacks force Allied withdrawals of up to 50 miles.

The spokesman said at least half of the United States 1st Cavalry's Eighth Regiment, trapped north of Kunu and west of Unsan, had escaped. Others were trying to filter through and rejoin friendly forces.

There was no new word on the fate of another 1st Cavalry Regiment trapped south of Unsan.

The South Korean 7th Division restored its main defenses at Kunu by noon Friday after the Reds had made some penetrations.

In Northwest Korea, air observers said a withdrawing South Korean regiment had dropped out of sight.

It was the 7th Regiment of the republic's 6th Division which reached the Manchurian border last week, then began a withdrawal when Red forces cut supply roads to the rear.

It was last sighted Wednesday and supplies were dropped by air.

Today's complaint marked the first time the Government has charged formally that more persons had active roles in the murder plot than the two actual triggermen who thought by their act to win independence for Puerto Rico, by starting a revolution in the United States.

The broadening Government case was revealed at the arraignment of Mrs. Carmen Torroella, dark-haired, 22-year-old widow of Griselio Torroella. The fanatic Puerto Rican Nationalist was shot to death in the flaming gun battle outside Blair House, the President's residence.

Mrs. Torroella was held under $50,000 bail. Mrs. Collazo previously had been held in similar bail.

The widowed defendant was coldly defiant during her arraignment before United States Commissioner Edward W. McDonald, United States Attorney Irving Saypol described her in court as being "quite casual" about the killing of one Blair House guard in the gun fight.

He quoted the woman as having said it was the guard's "unfortunate fate to be there" Wednesday afternoon when her husband and Collazo made their abortive assassination attempt.

It also was brought out that Torroella, as he undertook his murder mission, did so with the full knowledge that he probably would lose his own life in the attempt.

FIFTEEN SUBPOENAS
 "Other persons at this time unknown" also were declared to have had a hand in the plot, which will be investigated by a Federal grand jury in New York beginning November 8. Fifteen subpoenas have been issued so far for grand jury appearances.

BULLETINS

Loses $1,450

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3 (CP). Three armed bandits tonight forced a prominent Vancouver business man from his bed and robbed him of $1,450.

Jack Diamond, 41, said the masked men stuck a gun in his ribs and ordered him to open a small safe downstairs.

Flees Lhasa

NEW DELHI, Nov. 3 (INS).—Reports from Northern India said tonight that the 15-year-old Dalai Lama, the "Living Buddha" of Tibet, has fled his capital at Lhasa before the onrush of invading Chinese Communist troops.

Five Face U.S. Charges In Assassination Plot

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (INS).—The United States Government charged five persons today with an active part in the plot to assassinate President Truman, including the wives of the two Puerto Rican gunmen who stormed Blair House Wednesday.

In addition to the two women, the Government named two mystery defendants identified only as "John Doe" and "Richard Roe," and the surviving assassin, Oscar Collazo, who faces a murder charge in Washington.

"Other persons at this time unknown" also were declared to have had a hand in the plot, which will be investigated by a Federal grand jury in New York beginning November 8. Fifteen subpoenas have been issued so far for grand jury appearances.

"Bystander" on Embarkation Leave

C.Q.M.S. John Kelly (left) tried to join the Special Army Brigade last August, but was turned down for medical reasons. Sgt. Fred Allen, 223 Kinross Street (right) wasn't interested in joining but went with Kelly to the recruiting office just to "listen." He has now finished his basic training and is on embarkation leave. Wednesday night at the Canadian Scottish Sergeant's Mess he blamed Kelly again for the whole thing. However, they are still firm friends.

Poppies Appear Today

Today is Poppy Day. Poppies will blossom all over town, on coat lapels and hats, as Victorians display the symbol of remembrance of the thousands of Canadians who died in two World Wars.

Nearly 400 taggers will cover every downtown street corner between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. today to sell the crimson flowers.

Poppies this year will be in style for a full week. They will be worn right up to Remembrance Day, next Saturday.

Vessel Tows "Explosive"

BLAINE, Wash., Nov. 3 (AP).—The fishing vessel Tongva was gingerly putting into Blaine boathaven tonight with a "piece of explosive" in tow.

The coast guard was notified the Tongva picked up the explosive, possibly a mine, in Birch Bay tonight.

The Navy's Lieut. H. A. Ridenour, 1310 Naval District explosives disposal officer, was en route to take charge of the haul.

ALL ABOARD

By G. E. Mortimore

When you buy a poppy today, you're buying a home-town product and helping needy war veterans two ways.

Making poppies and wreaths is a year-round job for 16 disabled veterans who turn out the bright mementoes of Flanders' Fields in the Red Cross Workshop, corner of Johnson and Government Streets.

All poppies and poppy wreaths for British Columbia are made in Victoria. This year the workshop shipped 360,000 poppies and 8,000 wreaths all over the Province.

The little factory is under contract to Veterans' Products of Toronto, a Government-backed firm. Workers here don't benefit directly by proceeds of poppy sales, but a bigger turnover means a bigger order next year—and, maybe, more jobs.

Your dimes and dollars go direct from collection boxes to the Canadian Legion. The Legion dishes it out to veterans who need help—whether or not they're members.

Four hundred volunteer taggers will be on the streets today. Organized Guy Seymour expects a sale of 100,000 poppies in Victoria. I called yesterday on J. G. Morley, who has run the Red Cross Workshop ever since its start 30 years ago.

He showed me through the bare rooms where old soldiers were weaving vivid green and red fabrics together with handy fingers. Mr. Morley said 60 different materials go into poppies and wreaths.

He said I should be sure to tell the people that the tag day was not in aid of the Workshop—which has been self-supporting since 1921. But sales help indirectly.

He showed me one warehouse where scattered piles of cartons mounted to the ceiling.

"Last October this place was jammed," he said. Shipments start in October. Poppies are sent by boat, air and train to every Legion branch in British Columbia.

A sportsman suggests that small lakes around Victoria should be sown with rotenone to kill off all fish life, then planted with trout. The idea would be to kill coarser fish which gobble trout fry and give the trout a clear field.

A lot of people won't like it.

The project has apparently been carried out with success in Washington State, but as far as I know British Columbia game scientists are still experimenting cautiously with the rotenone poisoning of lakes. When I heard last, its effect on plant life was still in doubt.

From our float on Langford Lake we caught some small sunfish the other day. They're little round fellows, iridescent with blues and yellows, like swimming flowers.

We felt like murderers when we killed and fried half a dozen of them as an experiment. They were delicious, but so full of bones that they were scarcely worth the trouble. We won't do it again. Maybe we'll get a tank and give one or two sunfish a temporary home in the living-room.

In Langford there are also bass (good sport, good eating) and big crawling crawfish—which are really fresh-water lobsters. Crawfish do a wonderful job of scavenging and help keep the lake clean. They look sluggish, but when you disturb them they shoot backwards into a hole at express speed.

Shouldn't we let these creatures live too? Trout are delicious, and they are the aristocrats among sport fish. But I see no reason why we should turn our lakes into game farms.

A letter-writer recently praised the city fathers for repairing Victoria's aged City Hall, because it provides "a link with the past." That sounds like a good argument for turning it into a museum, but a very poor argument for keeping it as a City Hall.

Assembly Approves Proposal For Fast Action on Aggression

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (CP)—The United Nations Assembly today approved by 52 to 5 a Western-backed proposal for a veto-free system of collective security giving the United Nations power to meet aggression with armed force on a few hours notice.

For the first time in United Nations history, the Assembly was empowered to ask for troops if the Security Council fails to handle aggression immediately.

Assembly President Nasrallah Entezam hailed the action as perhaps the most important ever taken by any United Nations Assembly.

One of those who strongly supported the anti-aggression proposal was L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister and leader of the Dominion's United Nations delegation. Pearson said the world should not allow a repetition of the betrayal of collective security such as happened in the 1930's.

Entezam in effect called on all United Nations members to back up the resolution by placing armed

Stamp Designs Being Sought

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP)—The Post Office Department today invited Canadian artists to submit designs for Canadian postage stamps and offered to pay $300 for each one accepted.

An announcement said Postmaster-General Rinfret wants the character of Canada and Canadian art to be "displayed and publicized more adequately" on Canadian postage stamps.

For a beginning, the department wants designs representing the secondary industries of Canada, well-known Canadian wildflowers, the larger animals of Canada, portraits of Indians or Eskimos, symbols of native life, and outdoor activities and scenes.

Police Parley Fails to Halt Gem Robbery

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Nov. 3 (INS)—Jewel thieves took $25,000 in cash and jewelry from a Great Falls store early today while police officers from 12 Montana cities attending the Montana Police Protective Association slept in their hotel rooms.

The thugs drilled a hole in the roof of the United Store, climbed through, knocked the dial off a safe and escaped with diamonds, other jewelry and cash. A spokesman for the store said the thugs took the store's entire stock of diamonds.

Police said the robbery occurred between midnight and 6 a.m. The theft was discovered by a custodian who opened the store this morning.

Rebels Control Border Strich

SAIGON, Nov. 3 (INS)—Attacking Communist-led Indo-Chinese rebels gained control of a 300-mile stretch of the frontier bordering Red China today when they ousted French troops from Lonkay, last big northwestern fortress.

Approximately 1,500 French troops withdrew from the partly-encircled post and were still being pursued and attacked-Vietminh rebel natives at a point 15 miles westward in mountainous country.

A spokesman said the withdrawal was made "without losses," but the retreat westward toward Thailand presumably meant that the French were cut off from Hanoi, big French base city 165 miles southeast of Lonkay.

Oddities

WOONSOCKET, R.I., Nov. 3 (AP)—Bernard Halley, 22, of Uxbridge, Mass., spent the World War in the engineers, but he always wanted to be a tank driver.

This morning he saw what he thought was an unattended tank on the street, climbed in, threw a lever and set off.

An employee of the Woonsocket Highway Department spilled a cup of coffee in a nearby restaurant and headed for the door.

After a short sprint, he caught up with his street-sweeping machine. Judge Edward P. Dwyer dismissed a charge of driving away a motor vehicle. Halley paid $5 costs.

MUSCATINE, Ia., Nov. 3 (AP)—Janitor Joe Kelly has solved the mystery of the lipstick marks that appeared on the City Hall wall after he had painted it.

The paint had scarcely dried when Kelly noticed the impression of two dainty lips. A few days later his wall had been kissed again. Finally Kelly hid and caught a red-lipped 14-year-old girl in the act of applying more kiss marks. She was booked on charges of defacing public property.

FLEETWOOD, Lancashire, England (CP)—A three-foot black scabbard, an extremely rare fish, was landed here and sent to the British Museum for scientific study.

Living Cost Index Continues Rise, Hits Peak of 170.7 for September

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP)—Living costs made their eighth advance in nine months during September, moving the cost-of-living index up 0.8 points to a peak of 170.7 from 169.9, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Prices generally were higher for the consumer. A major exception was meat prices which decreased

Big Airliner, 48 Aboard, Lost in Alps

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 3 (AP)—A chartered Constellation airliner en route from Bombay to London with 48 East Indian seamen and a crew of eight was missing tonight and believed to have crashed in the Alpine approaches to Geneva airport during a blinding snowstorm.

No word has been received from the plane since it radioed Geneva at 10:43 a.m. (4:43 a.m. E.S.T.). At that time the British pilot, Capt. Alan Saint, said he was near Grenoble, France, 65 miles south of Geneva, and expected to land at Geneva at 11:05 a.m.

A French laborer from the village of Villorger, in the Savoy region, told authorities he heard two loud explosions a few seconds apart about 2:30 p.m. in the direction of Mont Pass on the French-Italian frontier. Search parties were sent out.

The four-engine Air-India plane, chartered by a British shipping firm, was transporting the seamen to Britain to man a newly-built 10,000-ton freighter, the Queen City.

French and Swiss air rescue services issued a general alert for the plane at 2 p.m., but no search planes were sent out because of a heavy overcast with showers and snow.

after a sharp Spring and Summer upward drive.

Prices increased for eggs, butter, milk, coffee, fruits, coal and coke, Autumn and Winter clothing, footwear, tires, certain drugs and other items.

With September's advance, the bureau estimated that living costs had climbed 69.3 per cent since August 1929. The index is calculated on the basis that 1929 prices equal 100.

On the wholesale front, prices during October appeared to level off. An official said this probably arose from the Government's move to free the Canadian dollar and the subsequent rise of the dollar on the New York market.

However, he did not believe this leveling-off would be long maintained.

On the consumer level, the food sub-index advanced 1.3 points to 220.1 from 218.8—a gain of 15.1 points from 205.0 a year ago. Prices for eggs, butter, milk, coffee and fruits over-balanced declines in meat and fresh vegetable prices.

Rents, surveyed on a quarterly basis, remained at the peak of 135.5—higher by 11.6 points from last year's 123.9.

Prices were higher for spruce lumber, wood pulp, steel shapes, raw rubber, rayon yarn and tin linings, but lower for wheat, oats, oil, lead, zinc and copper.

On another wholesale index, that of Canadian farm products, prices declined to 141.5 on October 27, compared with 142.3 on September 28.

Twenty Years, Two Statutes, Much Talk and No Steel

FOR twenty years and more a steel mill has been a ripe political subject in British Columbia. It breaks out sporadically, whenever a party wants an issue or the Opposition is short for something to talk about. At least two Provincial statutes have been passed through the Legislature in the same period, each of them pledging subsidies for the manufacture of steel within the province. In all of that time British Columbia has been importing Canadian, American, and European steel; a structural necessity of which it never has had enough. In all of that time, too, the iron, coal, labor and the other essentials of steel working have been at our own door. What was lacking was the resolution to use them; the relapse into the easy way of waiting for someone else to make this a gift to us.

From much that is being said currently it would appear that we are off on another round of pledging and promising; of hunting for someone else to come into British Columbia and do it for us. Yet one circumstance has changed. It is that today steel is unobtainable in Canada in the quantity that is needed for day-to-day construction, apart from new defence requirements. It is under such circumstances that subsidies are granted; as instanced by the subsidy to gold mining when Canada's exchange position was critical. The point we wish to make is that there is sufficient opportunity in British Columbia for the manufacture of steel on its own merits, if there is in British Columbia enough interest to bend time, resources and effort to that.

The suspicion rests that this province will wait a long, long time for others to develop its potentialities in the current times of world upheaval and unrest. If genuine self-development is intended, then there is little holding us back, but ourselves. All of the essential raw materials are present and in good supply.

Wars Are Not Ended Until They Are Finished

THE sharp reversal of fortune on the Korean war front is a reminder about counting chickens before they are hatched. For weeks it had been taken as a foregone conclusion that the North Koreans were licked and all that needed to be done was to round up the remnants of their retreating armies. Even General MacArthur proclaimed, in a message he must now regret, that the war was over.

Intervention of Chinese Communist troops, as reported, has changed the picture unpleasantly. Instead of an all-conquering march to the Manchurian border U.N. forces are battling desperately to hold ground, and in some cases being pushed backwards. In the long run no doubt is held as to the outcome, but the run may yet be much longer than was expected. Perhaps there has been undue complacency in high quarters.

Certainly one contributing factor in the re-grouping of enemy forces was the long halt of most U.N. troops at the 38th Parallel. While U.N. powers vacillated over the political effect of pushing on, North Koreans were enabled to draw a second wind, and as seems evident secure strong reinforcements in the shape of Chinese Communist divisions. It is ironical to reflect that the hesitations that caused the delay, based on fear of Chinese intervention, have been set at naught by the introduction of such troops anyway.

The situation could clear as fast as it became muddled, but as of this moment the destination of the Canadian Special Brigade must be more uncertain than ever.

Traffic and Parking Problems Cannot Be Shirked

IF any civic authorities in this province doubt the seriousness of automobile traffic and parking problems let them examine the latest statistics supplied by the registrar of motor vehicles. By the end of September last there were in British Columbia no fewer than 247,154 registered motor vehicles of all types, which means that the ratio of vehicles to population is now almost one to four. Out of a population of little more than a million, 312,031 persons are licensed to drive.

These statistics when compared with those at the corresponding date last year become almost alarming. This comparison shows that in one year the total number of vehicles in operation in British Columbia has increased by 35,363, of which nearly 30,000 are passenger vehicles. Although subject to fluctuation in relation to supply, the increase has been fairly steady for the past five years, during which time the car population of the province has doubled.

Since by far the largest proportion of vehicles is in the urban areas, where are the cities going to put them all if this multiplication continues year after year? At the present rate of increase traffic on city streets—and indeed main highways as well—would soon be clogged to virtual immobility, and parking areas could not begin to cope with the situation.

This rapid increase in traffic density just can't be ignored any longer. Civic authorities, whether they like it or not, will have to do some earnest planning for the needs of the future. By dint only of constant prodding the Victoria City Council has been induced lately to take some cognizance of the problem, but its interest so far has been half-hearted at best. A five-year period passes quickly; and in that short time Victoria may, at the present rate of increase, have twice as many cars and trucks as it has now. What then?

MILK PRICE

Sir,—Wondering why another increase is upon us for milk, the essential food for children. If my memory is correct, the price has doubled within five or six years. Also, why is milk graded to sell standard and special, when milk produced from the cow should all be milk, not different grades? This one-man milk board has a meeting once more and the service goes up, consumer pays, no explanation. Why?

They won't sell as much unless it is to mothers with children, who will have to pay whatever the one-man board decides.

Also, why does Victoria pay more for its milk than Vancouver. I don't think all milk producers are in favor of increasing the price. Not long ago we had an increase.

SAANICH AFFAIRS

Sir,—After reading your report on a recent Saanich Council meeting at which the council refused to endorse the action of works committee chairman Councillor Pickles, in ordering $250 worth of special truck parts, one cannot ignore the suspicion that creeps in, that a game of "til for tail" is once again being played at the expense of the ratepayers.

By Councillor Pasmore's reported remarks, it would seem he did not totally agree with his colleagues in the matter, so perhaps this councillor's feelings were not hurt in the council's discussion regarding delegates' expenses to the convention at Nelson.

No wonder Saanich is falling apart at the seams.

REGIMENTAL MASCOTS

Sir,—The death of Wallace, famous mascot of the Canadian Scottish, will be regretted by many ex-members of this regiment, including myself.

Probably the first well-known army pet from Canada was Peter, a huge goose, once owned by the 2nd Grenadier Guards. When this battalion served in our Dominion during the Riel Rebellion which took place just over a century ago, some of their men found Peter limping about with a broken leg. The soldiers took the injured bird to the medical officer, who treated him successfully and the goose seemed to take a fancy to the life of a soldier.

It is said that Peter once saved a sentry's life by flying with screams at a sniper who was in the act of firing.

When the battalion returned to England, Peter went with them. He always marched ahead of them as far as the main gate when they were leaving barracks, until one day when, going too far, he was killed by a cab in the public street.

In conclusion, I would like to say all veterans who knew Wallace are most grateful to Dr. M. L. Owen for his kindly professional services.

From "Prelude"

Not only around our infancy

Both heaven with all its splendours lie;

Daily, with souls that cringe and plot,

We snare and know it not.

Over our manhood bend the stars;

Against our fallen and traitor lives

The great winds utter prophecies;

With our faint hearts the mountain strives:

Its arms outstretched, the dread wood

Waits with its benediction;

And to our age a drowsy blood

Still shouts the inspiring sea.

Earth gets its price for what Earth owes us:

The beggar is taxed for a corner, to die in,

The priest bath his fee also comes and shrives us.

We bargain for the graves we lie in:

At the devil's booth all things are sold:

Each source of dross costs its ounce of gold:

For a cap and bells our lives we pay,

Bubbles we buy with a whole soul's tasking;

'Tis heaven alone that is given away.

'Tis only God may be had for the asking!

No price is set on the lavish summer:

Fame may be had by the poorest corner.

"ANYTHING TO DECLARE (WE HOPE)?"

Fate's Hand

By FRANK KELLEY

I WOULD not know whether he considered he was making sense or not when he wrote it; but I'd wager a perfectly good sixpence against the most decrepit of bawbees any time that it was in one of the most inspired moments in the life of the Warwickshire yeoman's son, greatest literary figure of Britain, that he penned one of the most profound examples of thought in a wide galaxy of outstanding expressions which have survived the centuries. I refer to that bit of inspired English his admirers treasure as true genius and some of his not-so-fulsome admirers have been known to pass off as pure poppycock: "There's a Divinity that shapes our ends, rough-hew them how we will."

The profundity of such reasoning is emphasized pointedly enough as the years recall to some what happened to Victoria on a certain May day in 1896. It was a nice day, too, with Victorians and their guests eager to witness the military manoeuvres advertised for Macaulay Plains. Street cars for this trip were loaded at the corner of Government and Yates Streets and the car which was scheduled to reach within shortest walking distance of the spectacle was most favored. That was how some bound for the "show" were left behind when the ill-fated car was sent west.

Bob Hutchison and myself were what you might call "buddies" in those days. Over to attend the program from Vancouver came his fiancée. I was to join them at Yates and Government, where we would catch the car leaving at a certain time and we'd travel together to the "Plains." In the meantime, I had had a brain-wave of sorts—frankly, there may not be any reason for assuming a divinity had anything to do with it—but it was to the effect that the youthful-engaged couple would probably enjoy themselves much better if there was no third party along. I was not the only one who didn't get aboard the doomed car that day. A woman with two little ones arrived at the starting point as the car moved away. I remember the mother seemed disappointed. How she felt later can only be imagined. Hutchison managed to get out of the car alive; his bride-to-be was not a survivor.

When that car rolled away I walked south on Government, crossed the bridge and headed up Birdcage Walk, hoping to catch something of the "show" from the top of Beacon Hill. Nearing Superior, I met Jack Hunter and Billy Roberts, who told me a phone call had come to the Hunter home stating that the Point Ellice Bridge had collapsed and a street car had hurtled into the bay. They were going to the J.B.A.A. to enlist for any service planned. Now first aid trained men were in a small minority in those days, but through lectures at the old yacht club I had picked up something of what was needed when a person had fallen into the water, and decided to get out to Point Ellice as fast as I could and possibly make myself useful. Express wagons were leaving the centre of town regularly for the scene of the tragedy.

When I got as far as Pleasant Street there was nothing at all pleasant about the picture revealed. The terraced lawns of Captain William Grant's home were lined with bodies, as was the west side of the road above the sealing company's wharf. And bodies were still being removed from the car which, by the way, was not entirely submerged. The picture was one of indescribable horror. Had there been any organized emergency group functioning at the time casualties would not have been so great. There was no authoritative direction, in other words, I offered my little knowledge of first aid to the apparently drowned to a man who seemed to be directing first aid efforts and was set a task of making artificial respiration work.

Darn those memories of fifty-four years ago!

Cutting Air Dangers

By E. COLSTON SHEPHERD

LONDON.—Improved methods of control are being organized at London airport, where several thousand landings by G.C.A. (ground-controlled approach) have been made during the two years the system has been in use there. G.C.A. is the system of "talking down" the pilot over the last ten miles of his approach from a height of 1,500 feet through cloud to a point 150 feet above the ground and 400 yards from the end of the runway. What determines the landing, therefore, is what the pilot can see at 150 feet. For that on a large proportion of occasions he has had to thank the pattern of high intensity lights marking the last 1,000 yards of approach to the landing runway.

During the past two years there has been a good opportunity to watch successive factors in beating bad weather slip into their place in a system which might have been thought complicated and even clumsy in theory. There were important operating companies which refused to allow their captains to use G.C.A. in dirty weather. These companies preferred that responsibility should lie not with a radar team on the ground but on their own captains relying on a dial in the cockpit to keep them on the same glide path. This is called the I.L.S., or instrument landing system. It works quite well, although it involves increased maintenance work in keeping instruments properly calibrated. But a new consideration is beginning to arise.

Controllers at London and Northolt airports find that aircraft landing with the aid of G.C.A. can be brought in at 4½-minute intervals. This interval is gradually being reduced to three minutes. Intervals for aircraft using I.L.S. are about six minutes. The reason for the difference is that G.C.A. aircraft is picked up 30 miles away and fed into an orderly, evenly-spaced approach pattern in which smaller separation between traffic can be used than in the case of I.L.S., where the pilot follows a special figure manoeuvre to the final approach path, and air traffic control depends for knowledge of his position upon a number of position reports over marked beacons.

Their effect is first to stretch visibility and also to give the pilot a horizon. Visibility described by ordinary tests as 150 feet may become 230 or 300 feet with the help of the lights. When those lights are seen as successive bars they enable the pilot to line up on the runway and to put his airplane on an even keel and on a normal angle of descent in relation to the runway of which the bars are a prolongation. The importance of this function cannot be exaggerated. Every pilot knows that the transition from instrument flying to visual flying is an extremely critical part of the approach procedure. On a descent like this, two pilots sit side by side, the one flying by instruments, the other watching for the first sign of the approach lights through the murk. The moment he can see the lights, the latter takes over control of the aircraft and, untroubled by concentration on instruments, brings the liner in to the landing, relying on what he can see outside.

Radar and lighting have much improved London's bad-weather record. They are improving the records of most first-class airports, for the special lights are said to improve visibility in snow much as they improve it in fog. Radar combined with radio beacons and "ranges" are now being further applied in Britain to secure an orderly flow and distribution of traffic along the lanes.

A special radar station to monitor aircraft in the lanes, to space, arrange and stand them off at such stages in their approach to the control zone will prevent congestion near the airport and diminish delays. This radar station has a reliable range of 140 miles or more on large transport aircraft at cruising altitudes and the controller can thus make up his traffic pattern when some of the incoming aircraft are that distance away instead of a mere 50 miles over which the London control extends, as at present. The advantage of this extension is obvious.

Our Dr. Chisholm Again

(From The Ottawa Journal)

OUR Dr. Brock (No Santa Claus) Chisholm has been telling a Toronto conference on the "biological hazards of atomic energy" that the atomic bomb is obsolete, seeing that the latest thing in making war is diseases which biological science could release and which would be more deadly than the bomb—so deadly that they could eliminate 50 per cent of the populations against which they were directed.

This sort of talk, we must say, mystifies us, as it must mystify others. Because if Dr. Chisholm knows that biological science has perfected such weapons, or can perfect them, then the British War Office and the United States War Department must have the same information. If they have the same information, then why on earth expend billions piling up stockpiles of atomic bombs—or, for that matter, billions on battleships and guns?

Seems to us there is but one thing to conclude here: either Dr. Chisholm is talking through his hat or our Governments, buying more bombs and battleships and tanks, are spending a lot of money uselessly.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

"To reduce, simply don't eat as much," says a Mayo Clinic doctor who, in his laughable innocence, neglects to mention the second best way.

As a money-saver, there is nothing like standing over a pile of smouldering autumn leaves to give the cheaper domestic tweed suit an aroma of the genuine imported.

Sick Man: Doctor, the other doctors disagree with you in their diagnosis. Doctor: Let them! The post mortem will show I'm right.

FIGURE SKATING

In a small rural community an unlettered farmer took over the management of the failing general store in the face of blunt warnings from his friends that he would never be able to make it pay. In a few months he had the enterprise humming with profitable business. An inquisitive acquaintance asked how he had accomplished the miracle.

"Well," the former farmer replied, "I guess it's because I believe in 'live and let live.' I buy an article for one dollar and sell it for two dollars. I'm satisfied with a one per cent profit!"

Nothing dates a remark like the modesty of the figures therein. For example, who today would dare to speak of "millions for defence?"

"We've just about given up trying to buy a house," said Mrs. Biffer. "But why?" inquired Mrs. Differ. "My husband," replied Mrs. Biffer, "asked me only last night how on earth we could ever save the ten per cent down payment."

Observation Car

By G.B.

A CHARMING lady staying with friends in Oak Bay decided to look her best at dinner when they announced their intention of donning evening clothes to attend a large card party. She took a favorite pearl necklace from its silk-lined box on her dresser and fastened it lovingly around her neck before tripping lightly down stairs to lay the table. "What a pretty necklace. It really enhances your beauty," the head of the household observed. "What a flatterer you are. You do think of the nicest things to say," she replied, with a sweet smile. After the dishes had been done and the furnace attended to, her host said: "Do not wait up for us. I expect we shall be late. You will not have to bother with the furnace. Be sure to help yourself to a snack before retiring." An enjoyable evening drew to a close, and the host and hostess finally arrived home at 3 a.m., somewhat later than they had intended to stay away from their comfortable home and guest. Much to their surprise, they found the lady sitting half asleep in a cosy chair beside the radio-phonograph. "Goodness gracious! You should not have waited up for us. My husband said something about 'being late.' You must be cold. Did you have something to eat? Let me make you a cup of coffee," the lady of the household said, all in one breath. "I had to wait until you arrived," the guest answered, with a faint attempt at a smile. "What on earth for? Surely the furnace did not go out? Do not tell me you were afraid to retire until we arrived," the head of the household asked. "Well, I intended to retire at 10 o'clock, but circumstances intervened. Perhaps I should not tell you about it. You might think it sounds silly," the guest replied. "There should be no secrets between friends. Let us know," the man of the family commented. "As a matter of fact, I could not unfasten this necklace, and I was afraid to go to bed in case it might choke me," the charming lady explained.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

THERE is a turtle type of person whom neither protest nor criticism can touch. Very often, these people actually look like turtles. They have the expressionless eye, the phlegmatic mien, the stolid movements of the turtle.

You will encounter them often in traffic. They are driving a car ahead of you with the utmost stolidness. They drive slowly. They veer wide to pass another car when a very slight veer would have done. Your modest toot to suggest that they get a wiggle on make not the slightest impression. When they come to an intersection or stop light, they start to slacken speed long before they need to. They finally stop their car with a visible jerk. It is the way a turtle stops.

When the lights turn green, it takes them a moment to collect their wits and transmit the order to proceed through their chill reflexes. Enraged, you blow the horn loud and furiously under their tail. With supreme indifference, they proceed in their own way, slowly, jerkily. You attempt to pass them. You fail, due to their methodical progression and their wide veering. But at the next red light, you manage to run up alongside them. You turn and glare.

Not only do they ignore you. They are totally unaware of you. They are turtles.

You will also find this turtle type amongst policemen, commissioners, civic employees of the front counter level, civil servants of the grade that sits at a small bare desk outside the door of the man you want to see. And also among newspaper city editors.

For the turtle has found a place in nature, and the turtle type has a basic role to play amongst us humans. It is against their solid shells, their tough hides, their thin cold blood and their shelled countenances that the hysterical element amongst us can beat our silly wings in vain. It would be a dithery world, in fact, without them.

Looking Back

Through Colonist Files

25 YEARS AGO—As another step in the movement to attract new industries to Victoria, the city council last night placed itself on record as favoring the granting of tax exemption and free water for five years to industrialists seeking inducements to locate here.

50 YEARS AGO—Already vessels of the sealing fleet are being repaired and overhauled in readiness to go to sea again early next month. Several of the owners of schooners are now figuring on sending their vessels to Japan next season.

85 YEARS AGO—Mr. Thomas Pritchard yesterday placed upon our table a jug of home-made cider, the first manufactured by him on the island. It has an excellent flavor and, when a little older and more clarified, will form a delicious beverage.

Happy Valley Students Stage Play

Thirty Grade III and IV students from Happy Valley School presented a play to illustrate portion of Island history for session on rural schools at Vancouver Island Teachers' convention. Students in picture are, left to right: Victor Bing, 8; Dennis Marston, 9; Carole Phillips, 8; Jan Fraser, 9; and Judy Mosely, 8. With them is Happy Valley School teacher, Mrs. A. M. Fraser.

Two Artists Rewarding In Recital

A small Victoria audience went away musically wiser and fuller last night after hearing the work of two talented young Canadian artists in a recital sponsored by the B.C. Registered Music Teachers' Association, Victoria Branch.

Sidney Elizabeth Young, brilliant 16-year-old Winnipeg pianist, displayed the kind of mature polish and flashing technique which promises a great future in the concert field.

The young pianist is the winner of the coveted Manitoba Ferguson Memorial Trophy and scholarship presented by the Manitoba Registered Music Teachers' Association.

LOVELY SOPRANO
The other artist, also from Winnipeg, was 21-year-old Beira Boroditsky, whose lovely soprano voice was heard in a group of difficult and beautiful songs.

Run-up in the recent Rose Bowl competition, Miss Boroditsky has received high praise from eminent musical festival adjudicators.

Miss Young led off her program with a pair of complex sonatas by Scarlatti and the Sixth Prelude and Paganini by Bach. The pieces showed her amazing technical skill and control.

Under her mature touch, the small Steinway upright became a grand and the Arts Centre Gallery, an acoustically-sound concert hall, especially in works like the thunderous and melodic Brahms Second Rhapsody.

The last two works of Miss Young's varied groups were Arabesque No. 1 by Debussy and the immensely challenging Toccata by Khachaturian.

RARE GIFT
In the last two, the young pianist displayed a rare gift for shading and tone color.

Miss Boroditsky's choice of songs was excellent for its display of her vocal range and control and for its musical appeal.

Singing in Italian, she did the well-known "Si Mi Chiamano Mimì" by Puccini and in German, two selections by Schubert.

The young Winnipeg soprano sang with a clear, vibrant voice and faultless diction, and with quiet restraint in songs like Elgar's "Shepherd's Song."

The talented pair are currently on a tour of the Western Provinces under the direction of the Canadian Federation of Music Teachers' Associations.

They are studying in Winnipeg under members of the Manitoba Association.

The recital is one of the current presentations of the Canadian Federation in their Young Artists Series.

Will Urge Arena Body Take Over

Alderman Frank Mulliner, Arena Committee chairman, said yesterday that his committee would recommend that City Council put the Memorial Arena entirely into the hands of the Arena Commission as soon as the refrigeration plant has been accepted by C. T. Hamilton, former consulting engineer.

"We expect Mr. Hamilton's acceptance shortly," Alderman Mulliner said.

Whether an arena committee of council will be required, following acceptance of the last contract, is a doubtful question which next year's council probably will have to decide.

With construction problems ended, the duties of an arena committee would be negligible. Questions of management will be settled by the commission and the only occasion on which it would have to approach council would be to ask for authority to make capital expenditures.

Trial by Higher Court Elected in Knife Case

Anton Konkin, 715 Wilson Street, charged with assaulting John Novak, 2071 Cook Street, with intent to maim, elected trial in a higher court in city police court yesterday.

The preliminary hearing was set for November 17. Gordon Cameron is defence counsel.

Konkin was charged after a stabbing in a Cook Street home last month.

THEFT CHARGES
Lloyd Newton, 18, charged with the theft of $40 from Charles Back-tour and Bunt Baines between August 12 and 24, was remanded to next Wednesday without plea, at the request of his lawyer, James J. Proud-foot.

Ronald R. Robinson, who pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing three watches October 28 from the home of Jack Davis, 4 Menzies Street, was remanded to Tuesday for a probation officer's report. E. E. Pearman appeared for Robinson on behalf of the Children's Aid Society.

Juvenile Officer Arthur Rudge, who arrested Robinson, told the court the accused produced two watches when questioned about the breaking and entering, and told the whereabouts of another one he had sold to a school friend.

PLEADS GUILTY
Linn Quin, 552 Cormorant Street, pleaded guilty to a charge of allowing persons under the age of 18 in his billiard room. A similar charge against his son, John Lin, was withdrawn.

The prosecutor told Magistrate Hall a 16-year-old boy and a 14-year-old boy were playing pool and a 13-year-old boy was watching.

The accused was sitting in full view of all the boys, he added.

Before passing judgment, the magistrate noted it was very important in the interest of youth that the places of amusement by-laws be carefully enforced and obeyed.

He made the fine $10 or in default three days in jail, but warned that heavier penalties would be in store for future offenders.

DRIVING CASES
Richard J. Holdcroft, Prestwood Drive, was sentenced to 15 days in jail when found guilty on a drunken driving charge.

Defence counsel made a plea for leniency on behalf of the accused in the matter of licence suspension. He said Holdcroft was employed by Saanich Municipality and needed his car for his work.

"If people would only realize the severity of the penalty for drunken driving they would take greater care," said Magistrate Hall.

In view of the special circumstances, he stated, he would suspend Holdcroft's licence for one month and require him to drive for business purposes only for another 11 months.

"I'll expect Saanich to advise me if he doesn't abide by the latter ruling," concluded the magistrate.

FINED
Pleading guilty to a charge of driving his car without a windshield wiper, James Fair was fined $10.

Tranquility, Safety Gone

Approach of Canadians to Education 'Outmoded, Nostalgic,' Says Ewing

A packed luncheon meeting at the Vancouver Island Teachers' convention heard a leading educator term current Canadian educational philosophy "outmoded and nostalgic."

The speaker was Dr. John M. Ewing, principal of Victoria College. His talk was given in the Victoria High School gymnasium.

"It does not apply to the realities of the 20th century world, because it is postulated on the existence of tranquility and safety, and these are nowhere to be found," Dr. Ewing said.

Present education emphasizes the cultivation of personal grace and charm, the idea that happiness is the avoidance of frustration, the sanctification of success, the concealment of personal limitations, automatic approval of meagre achievement, no failure, no regret, no hardship and no toil, he said.

BASIC FUNCTION

"The basic function of education is to adjust the individual to his environment," the speaker told the meeting.

The teachers took over from the students at Victoria High School yesterday.

More than 900 of them jammed classrooms at the High School as sectional meetings got underway for the fourth annual Vancouver Island Teachers' convention.

Twenty-two meetings in the morning covered all phases of schooling from physical education to art. First sectional meetings started at 9 a.m. and continued until 12:30 p.m.

Halls were jammed with teachers from all Island points as they switched from one part of the building to another.

SOCIAL ADJUSTMENT

Luncheon speaker was Dr. John M. Ewing, principal of Victoria College. He talked on the "Realities of Social Adjustment."

In the afternoon, nine more meetings were held. These included talks on counseling and guidance, home economics, industrial arts and mathematics.

Last night, the teachers took a rest and attended a dance at the Crystal Garden. Entertainment included a diving exhibition by the Victoria Pro-Rex, a water ballet by the Y.M.C.A. Aqua Nymphs and acrobatics by the Pro-Rex group.

A B.C. Teachers' Federation business meeting will be held today as the Island teachers and their three-day convention here.

Consider Cost Of Apparatus

DUNCAN, Nov. 3.—North Cowichan Municipal Council clerked to compile an analysis of fire equipment costs for discussion at the next meeting.

The council is in favor of purchasing five fire trucks at a cost of about $40,000, to be stationed at Maple Bay, Somers, Quamichan, Gibbins Road and Chemainus.

Chemainus may be faced with an increase of two mills on the tax rate to pay for a new fire engine. Crofton also pays a tax for fire protection. Chemainus may sell a pump to Westholme, which did not request a self-contained fire-fighting unit.

A portable radio recording kit operated on batteries is no larger than a physician's handbag.

Yvonne de Carlo on Verge Of Split With U.I. Studio

HEARD IN HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA O. FARNSWORTH
HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (INS).—After ten years' Technicolor years, Yvonne de Carlo and Universal-International are on the verge of calling it quits, although you need a detector test to get either side to admit it.

Frankly, I'm surprised. Yvonne may not be another Bette Davis or Olivia De Havilland, but her gaudy, colorful movies about Arabian and other princesses always went well at the box office. She's wonderful, whistle-bait.

I believe the answer to why no many good stock stars and studios are parting company these days is because the routine, run-of-the-mill movies are not attracting fans. The days have come for something so-called different in pictures, instead of stories being tailored to fit contract stars on hand.

HELP FOR INDIANS

If you've got any old clothes, any toys that your children no longer use, if you have a few cents to spend on candy, you'd be doing a wonderful deed to send them to Brother Gareth Hughes, at St. Mary's Church, Nixon, Nev.

Gareth, who gave up a $1,000-a-week movie career to spend his time helping the Indians, says that winter is fast approaching and his Indians need clothes badly.

He's done wonders with the Indian children, not only teaching them about religion, but giving them material aid.

It will be a St. Paul wedding on December 1 for Peter Graves, who clicked in "Koppe River," and non-professional Jean Adress, the home town girl who kept his heart.

Gabriel Pascal took a plane for London as soon as word of George Bernard Shaw's illness reached him. He wasn't able to get there before the end. Pascal was the only one Shaw would allow to film his pictures.

Got an idea for Lionel Barrymore's biography? Neither Lionel nor Biographer Cameron Shipley can think of a title even with the book scheduled for January release.

West had played against this particular North many times before and knew that while his bidding might be inconstant here and there, North never greatly exaggerated his high-card values. Thus, West felt sure that if the heart queen was held by either opponent, as it figured to be, it would turn up in dummy rather than in the closed hand. Moreover, the bidding had made it clear that it would be difficult if not impossible to defeat four spades, since it was scarcely to be hoped that East had as good a hand as West held!

Even with all this reasoning, it required considerable luck, as well as fortitude, for West to hit upon the one opening which could have routed the enemy! West led a low heart!

South cannot be blamed for what happened! He put in dummy's ten and lost the trick to East, who promptly returned a heart. West cashed the king and ace, then partnered with the fourth round of that suit—and when East ruffed in with his spade ten, South was helpless, since an overruff would promote West's spade jack!

Uncle Wiggly Story

By Howard Garls

WATER FOR CHIEF

Uncle Wiggly, with Buster and Bunty, his little rabbit friends, was in what Cousin Jumper said later was "a peck of trouble." Cousin Jumper was a visiting rabbit from Green Tree Valley and he said funny things sometimes. Being in "a peck of trouble" was one of them.

Uncle Wiggly didn't know just now where his cousin Mr. Jumper had been. For Mr. Jumper, being very fond of adventures, had gone down a rabbit hole like Alice in Wonderland. Uncle Wiggly, Buster and Bunty, as well as Chief, the police dog, had also gone down the rabbit hole to look for Cousin Jumper. But they couldn't find him.

Then Chief, who had started to crawl through an underground tunnel, was stuck. The tunnel, which opened out of the rabbit hole, was so small that Chief could neither go ahead nor back up.

"I certainly am stuck and in a bad fix," wailed Chief. "Uncle Wiggly, with Buster and Bunty, are behind me in the tunnel. They were not stuck but they couldn't move past me. He was the one who was stuck."

"I don't know what I am going to do," said Chief sadly. "I can't help you find your cousin Jumper, Wiggly."

"Oh, yes, you can," said Bunty. "How can I?" asked Chief. "Here I am stuck in the tunnel. I can neither move forward nor backward. You had better look out of this tunnel as best you can. Wiggy, Get Sergeant Bill and some of my police dogs. Maybe they can dig me out."

"There will be no need for that," said Bunty, confident like and sure. "I will get you out of the light tunnel, Chief."

"Again, Bunty, my dear, I ask you how?" asked the stuck police dog. "I will sprinkle you with some of this small-size shrinking water," answered the orphan rabbit.

"What do you mean by small-size shrinking water?" Chief asked.

"I will tell you about it," said Uncle Wiggly. "A short time ago Bunty fell into a puddle of water."

HUNTINGTON, Norfolk, England (UPI).—John Richardson found a short, thin-bladed sword buried in his garden and gave it to his younger brother to play with. Now a museum has offered to buy it. The "plaything" was a 14th-century sword.

THE WAY WEST

By A. B. GUTHRIE, Jr.

She got up and straightened the dress with the flouncy collar and went to him and bent her head against his chest, holding to his shirt with her hands.

"Mercy!" he said, while his arms came around. "Little Mercy!" There was misery in his voice still, but also a beginning of something else again, together making a kind of wild torment that she found assurance in. "I'm crazy. I'm not good for you, Mercy."

Millions, Evans thought, a million of buffalo, buffalo to right and left and ahead and behind, and the country, closing the train in, looking up dust that hung low like a fog. A man wouldn't live long enough to count them, even if he could count that high. And he couldn't parcel out the uproar that they made. Bulls bellowed and cows bawled and calves cried for their mas, and the voices joined in what was one big, doleful roll.

The buffalo didn't run from the train, not much, but lagged away, made mullah maybe by their numbers or sore for want of grass, and glared after the wagons, and then went hunting for grass again. For he had picked the ground clean as a chicken except for clumps of high-growing sage that gave off the smell of camphor, or turpentine, where they'd trampled it.

Evans said, "I would've called you a liar, Dick, if you'd told me." Before he answered, Dick slued around in the saddle, his eyes fixed on the train that was jolting along a half mile behind. "Plenty meat all right."

"The grass is just pinfeathers." "Well, Dick said, while for a minute the light played in his eyes, "you wanted buffer."

"Dammedest country! Don't do nothin' by halves. Either there ain't a buffalo—or there's nothin' but buffalo."

Evans never had thought to set his eyes on such a sight as this. It was a wild, strong sight, a rich and powerful sight that awed a man and lifted him inside—the plains climbing into ridges where, once in a while, trees stood spare and tough, and sky curved across, so blue it pained the eye, far things brought close and sharp as through a glass, and buffalo on all the land and the roll of their bellows in all the air.

Again he felt greatness, smallness and greatness both among such wild riches. And, seeing the train winding behind him, he thought with pride of it, of the oneness of its people, of their stubborn, un-thought-out yondering. It wasn't a thing for reason, this yondering, but for the heart, where secrets lay deep and mixed. Money? Land? New chances? Patriotism? All together they weren't enough. In the beginning that is, they weren't enough, but as a man went on it came to him how wide and weakly was his country, and the pride he had talked about at first became so real he lost the words for it.

Helen Porter, A. Leech Repeat Marriage Vows

The Salvation Army Citadel, Pandora Avenue, was decorated with pastel shades of chrysanthemums, Thursday evening, for the wedding of Helen Louise, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Porter, 1846 Holland Avenue, who exchanged vows with Mr. Arthur Leech, third son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Leech, 60 Broadway East, New Westminster. Major George Volney officiated at the ceremony and Mr. George Gray played the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in embezzled white satin, fashioned on princess lines with sweetheart neckline, lily-point sleeves and buttoned down the back to a small bustle. Her full-length veil fell from a coronet of seed pearls and her only jewelry was a rhinestone necklace, the gift of the groom. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses, white carnation and fern.

Attending the bride was her sister, Mrs. Jack Rankin, as matron of honor; Mrs. Nelson Martin, as bride's matron; and Miss Hazel Rankin, niece of the bride, as bridesmaid. The three gowns were fashioned alike, with matching broad satin blouses and very full skirts over taffeta. Bouquets of contrasting shades of chrysanthemums were carried.

Little June Martin was flower girl wearing pink net over taffeta, styled on princess lines with sweetheart neckline and carried a Colonial bouquet.

Mr. Nelson Martin was best man and the ushers were Mr. Curtis Eccles and Mr. Eric Bent. The reception was held in the adjoining gymnasium where Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Leech assisted the young couple in receiving their guests, under an archway decorated with red roses and fern. A three-tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, centred the refreshment table.

During the evening, Mr. Ernest Benn acted as master of ceremonies and solos were sung by Mrs. Barbara Adair and Miss Mildred Jackson. Leaving for Up-Island the bride wore a wine gabardine dress, grey topcoat and wine accessories. The

Mr. and Mrs. John Moore Drive to San Francisco

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends took place last evening at St. John's Church, the principals being Patricia Violet, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Peck, 1613 Vancouver Street, and John McBride Moore, elder son of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Moore, 2841 Sea View, Ten Mile Point, and grandson of the late Sir Richard McBride, premier of British Columbia, and the late Lady McBride.

While chrysanthemums on the altar and in Autumn tones at the chancel made an attractive background for the ceremony which was conducted by Rev. Canon George Biddle. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was a lovely picture. Her gown was of gleaming white satin featuring a wide flounce of Chantilly lace at hipline and graceful skirt; and fitted bodice with tiny satin buttons fastening the back was fashioned with Peter Pan collar and long, pointed sleeves. Her elbow-length veil of illusion net was arranged under a coronet trimmed with lily of the valley caught to the head with clusters of seed pearls. A sapphire pendant, the groom's gift, was her only ornament. The bridal bouquet was composed of American Beauty roses backed with net and streamers knotted with rosebuds.

There were three attendants. Miss Ruth Conibear of Vancouver was maid of honor in soft pink; Miss Harriet McLeod, bridesmaid, chose pale blue, and Miss Arlene Scouler, niece of the bride, junior bridesmaid, wore white. Their frocks were similarly styled in net over taffeta with cap sleeves and full, floor-length skirts. All wore white net mitts and had gold crosses with chains, the bride's gifts. Carnations and chrysanthemums in shades of pink and white formed their Colonial bouquets and the same blooms feathered were tucked in their hair.

The bridegroom had his brother, Mr. Richard H. "Tim" Moore, as best man, and acting as ushers were Mr. Alan Lennox of Duncan and Mr. Gordon McMillan.

Mr. Frederick Chubb played the wedding music, and while the couple signed the register, Mr. Thomas Crabbe sang "The Lord's Prayer."

P.T.A. Plans Country Fair

At a recent meeting of the Victoria West P.T.A. plans were discussed for a Country Fair, to be held on November 10, 7 to 10 p.m., in the school. There will be hot dogs, coffee and doughnuts, a chatty stall, brandy-games, a parcel-post sale, and many other activities. Miss Violet Warren is convener.

Miss Edna Lawrence, co-ordinator of mental hygiene, gave a talk on "Parenthood."

The school was decorated by Miss E. Kennedy, and refreshments were served by Mrs. D. MacDonald and her committee.

Police Ball At Empress Gala Affair

Swirling ball gowns, sedate blue uniforms and brilliant scarlet tunics created a striking panorama of color and gaiety at the annual Police Ball last night in the Empress Hotel.

Alderman and Mrs. Harold Diggon led off in the brisk grand march and came down in "fours" with Chief of Police J. Blackstock and Mrs. Blackstock.

Lending an international note to the affair was the appearance of Seattle Chief of Police George Eastman and Mrs. Eastman, Captain Frank Ramon and Mrs. Ramon, Sgt. M. H. Hanson and Mrs. Hanson and Officer R. Dupen and Mrs. Dupen.

From Vancouver came Inspector F. O. Fish, president of the Vancouver Police Mutual Benevolent Association and Mrs. Fish; Detective Fred Dougherty, president of the Vancouver Police Federation and Mrs. Dougherty; Constable and Mrs. A. E. Oliver and Detective and Mrs. Charles Clarence.

Colorful gowns added a sparkling fashion note to the ball.

Mrs. B. Klejsiad who attended the affair with her father, Alderman F. B. Scurrah, was striking in a black velvet gown frosted with a shoulder-wide ivory lace bertha sprinkled with rhinestones.

Mr. C. C. Wyatt, city manager, attended with Mrs. Wyatt who was attractively dressed in ballerina-length black taffeta.

Miss Peggy Wadsworth, escorted by Mr. Don Appleton was noticed dancing in a frock of boldly striped white and gold taffeta. Deep red roses accented her gown worn with a stole of tulle.

Miss Anna Sasa, secretary to the chief of police, and her escort were seen in the foyer with Mrs. Avis Palmason and Mr. Ken Bostock. Miss Sasa was dressed in a gown of black velvet with pearl-encrusted shoulder straps. A pearl necklace completed her ensemble. Mrs. Palmason chose a gown of full-skirted taffeta in Delft blue and orchid. She wore orchid elbow-length gloves.

TEAL BLUE TULLE
Pretty, blond Miss Vivian Nottley, escorted by Mr. Bob Montgomery, was charming in a teal blue tulle gown with roses accenting the bodice.

A strapless gown of iridescent bronze taffeta was worn by Miss Audrey Lock, who was escorted by Constable G. McFarlane, R.C.M.P. Miss Lock pinned her corsage of tea roses at the waist.

Mrs. J. W. Dickie, escorted by her husband, wore exquisite black lace posed over a green underdress. Her daughter, Miss Norma Dickie, chose a lovely frock of white tulle with bouffant skirt circled with black lace inserts. Her escort was Mr. Harold Temple.

Turnabout By Princess Upsets Fans

LONDON, Nov. 3 (INS).—Princess Margaret Rose—once the idol of Britain's teen-agers—hasn't any more. She has become "too conservative" and it's cramping the other kids' style.

The teen-age turnabout on Margaret was revealed today in a survey of the soda shoppes which brought the general complaint that the "new" Margaret Rose is spoiling the bobby-soxers' fun.

They say the Royal Family's 20-year-old glamour girl has become too sedate and "adult."

Barbara Wilson, 17-year-old shop assistant, complained:

"I used to get away with coming in a bit late now and again when I told mummy 'but Princess Margaret stays out until all hours.'"

"Mummy used to say 'well you're not a princess—but she'd let it go at that. Now she reads the riot act and says I should turn over a new leaf.'"

Princess Margaret turned over her new leaf last December when her father reportedly told her, her social activities were resulting in undignified publicity.

At the regular meeting of the Cordova Bay P.T.A.—it was decided to ask all members to meet at the school, Saturday afternoon, November 18, to form a work bee to clean up the school grounds.

Mill Bay passed a resolution requesting his transportation so children could attend school social functions at Duncan, and another suggesting publication of teachers' salaries.

DUNCAN, Nov. 3.—Mayor James O. Wragg and aldermen received a proposal that the city pay $72 per month plus electric light bills, for a large illuminated sign to be erected at the intersection of Trunk Road and the new Island Highway.

Mayor Wragg pointed out the sign would advertise six organizations in addition to the city, and thought funds should be spent on street lights rather than an illuminated sign. He added that a Duncan company was willing to erect a sign at no cost to the City Council.

It was decided to consider the reuniting of Ladysmith in the city. Lawrence Chambers reported 79 street signs had been painted and made ready for lettering. John Clarkson described efforts to obtain garage service for tourists on Sundays. Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., M.M., spoke on the Korean campaign and need for a permanent breakwater at Ladysmith.

Outlines Work On Six Bridges

DUNCAN, Nov. 3.—Councillor George Evans said at a meeting of North Cowichan Municipal Council that he was disappointed at the amount of road work during the past ten months. His remark was made on receipt of a letter from Vimy Ratepayers' Association asking about repairs to Menzies bridge.

Reeve A. E. Beasley pointed out completion of repairs to the bridge would cost about $5,000. He said five other bridges had been repaired, and approximately 30 per cent of the municipal budget had been spent on road and bridge work.

"It took until June 15 to repair winter damage. We need no alibi. I am not ashamed of the work already completed," he stated.

Note Progress At Brentwood

Falls in Faint During Assizes

NANAIMO, Nov. 3.—Leslie John, 20, a resident of Nanaimo Indian Reserve No. 1, was found guilty at the Nanaimo Fall Assizes on a charge of robbery with violence at the Bright Spot Cafe in May, 1949.

John collapsed in a dead faint while P. S. Gulliford, K.C., Crown prosecutor, was speaking to an appeal for clemency that had been delivered by Neil B. Cook, Vancouver, defence counsel.

The prisoner's mother ran screaming from her seat among the spectators, and suffered a heart attack in the middle of the courtroom. She was taken to hospital by Matthew Gunma, deputy sheriff. John was led sobbing from the court. Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson will pronounce sentence Monday morning.

Reeve Beasley States Stand

DUNCAN, Nov. 3.—If "anyone succeeds in this municipality, at either end, it will be ten years before it actually happens," Reeve A. E. Beasley said at a meeting of North Cowichan Municipal Council.

"It is just shadow boxing so far," he commented, in referring to the two separate secessionist movements in the municipality.

He said Hon. R. C. MacDonald, Minister of Municipal Affairs, had assured him the Provincial Government would not allow the centre of North Cowichan Municipality to revert to the status of unorganized territory, nor would it allow Chemainus to form a village municipality.

UP TO TAXPAYERS
"Whatever takes place, it will have to meet the approval of the majority of taxpayers first," Reeve Beasley commented.

After the meeting, P. P. Clarkson, leader of the secessionist movement, said he knew of no statute or law which would prevent territory from reverting to unorganized status.

"This area cannot be compared with Saanich. There are conditions peculiar to the district which are not found in Saanich. In any case, it will be the wish of the majority that rules, not just the wish of the North Cowichan Municipal Council," he declared.

A hill in the Orkney Islands will be the site of a windmill generating 100 kilowatts of electricity.

Slammin' Sam Blasts Out at 17th

Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., blasts out from sand trap on 17th green during his final round in the North-South Golf championship at Pinehurst, N.C., yesterday. He laid back near cup and sank putt for par 3 on the hole. He led a large field to win tournament with total 276 for four days.

Snead Holds Pinehurst Golf Crown

PINEHURST, N.C., Nov. 3 (INS)—Sammy Snead defended his North and South Open golf championship successfully today, and added $1,500 to his income by choosing a two-under par 70 that gave him a four-stroke victory over Johnny Palmer.

The West Virginia slammer 72-hole total of 275 enabled him to become the first golfer to win the Pinehurst event two years in a row since Bobby Graubart did it in 1926 and 1927.

Snead played almost mechanically to beat out Palmer, whose last round 72 gave him a total of 279. But the tournament wasn't a complete waste for the Ryder International, whose first-round six-under-par 65 was a career record and who collected $1,000 for his troubles.

HARMON THIRD
In third place was Claude Harmon, with a four-round card of 281. Harmon, who won $250, shot a 70 today.

The low amateur was Frank Stashman with a 74 today, that brought his total to 287.

The top money winners included Jimmy Bates of Mid-Pine, N.C. (282), Johnny Belfrage (282), and Max Turney (284).

Edmonton Flyers flashed their power over Regina Caps in the Western Canada Senior Hockey League last night, to the tune of a 9-2 victory.

Witiuk, who ended the evening with four goals to his credit, played some three of them within 75 seconds in the third period. League record of 62 seconds is held by his teammate, Ring Merik.

The dark-haired winger is playing his first year with Edmonton. He tried out with Regina last year but was released and joined the season with Kamloops.

O.H.A. Urges Tighter Rule
GUELPH, Nov. 3 (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association moved today to make it more difficult for players to get a release from a Class 'A' club after signing.

The O.H.A. Junior 'A' Council voted to ask the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to take a regulation making it impossible for a player who was paid $1,000 or more during the previous season to appeal against his club's refusal to grant him a release.

The council also decided to ask the C.A.H.A. to put major and junior 'A' series on a contract basis. The proposal has been considered—and rejected—for the last two years.

WHITNEYS TO MEET

Film Gives Hints
Soviet Women Athletes Seen as Olympic Threat

By LAWTON CARVER
NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (INS)—Russia is preparing for a return to the Olympic games in 1952 with a nationwide speed-up that is grinding out athletes in production-line quantities.

There are more sports people than ever in the Soviet Union, and they are now a threat to United States Olympic supremacy in the international sports scene.

Helms and the United States need not worry to the least about the Soviet Union. The problem is going to be to handle the big tough Russian women.

This was the opinion expressed today by Dan Ferris, head of the National A.A.U. and other sports figures after viewing a Russian-made documentary film, "Soviet Women Athletes," which is described as "Russia's preview of the 1952 Olympics."

THREE IMPRESSIONS
The film shows the Russians engaged in athletics of all kinds and carrying all kinds of world championship titles. Ferris got just three distinct impressions from the movie.

MINOR MATTERS
"However, these are minor matters which the United States can handle. For instance, the way we can throw weightlifting away when the Russians and Europeans were favored," Ferris said.

He added: "Their women track and field competitors are going to be a different problem. Strange as it may seem, that the Russian women can outrun the men in world competition."

"Their women won the European track and field championships and from what I saw in this film, today they will make it tough for the rest of the world. This handle a shot as though it were a grape and a discus as lightly as a piece of toast, and then have a beautiful smile."

Don't think the United States has anything to worry about in the Olympics," Ferris was asked. "Do the Russians scare you?"

"They are just beginning to qualify for the big leagues," he said.

Culley Injured In Practice; Out of Game

MANITOBA, Nov. 3 (CP)—Don Culley, former Edmonton player, will not be with Nanaimo Clippers when they face Kerrisdale Monarchs in a Mainline Canadian Hockey League game tonight in Vancouver.

Culley, who with teammate Andy Glenewich joined the Nanaimo team two weeks ago, suffered a bad artery cut at the back of the neck during a pre-game practice at the Nanaimo rink. Bleeding copiously from the wound, he was removed to the Nanaimo Hospital. He was released following treatment.

Manager Blair Cook said this morning that loss of blood would keep Culley on the sidelines at least for this week-end.

Mrs. Smith Wins
Women from the Uplands Golf Club held their monthly medal competition yesterday with Mrs. W. S. Smith taking the "A" division with a net 79.

There was a two-way tie for the "B" division between Mrs. O. Verley and Miss U. L. McAnally, each with 87.

It has been probably an interesting game, but the Kerrisdale team has been the beginning of the season and against Nanaimo there was no cause to feel the spell might be broken.

The powerful Clippers scored one goal in each of the first two periods and added their fourth in the final without an answer from Kerrisdale.

In an inter-league game the Nanaimo Monarchs defeated Kerrisdale Monarchs 5-0.

Pacific Ports Expect Good Winter

By The Canadian Press

With the close of the summer navigation season barely a month away, Canada's ice-free ports are anticipating a busy winter.

A Canadian Press survey indicates that most port officials expect increased business over last winter and that all find prospects good.

Pacific Coast ports, operating on a year-round basis, report good prospects with lumber and grain shipments to the United Kingdom expected to bolster brisk movement of general cargoes.

While the start of the winter rush at Halifax and Saint John, N.B., will depend largely on the closing date of St. Lawrence River navigation to Montreal and Quebec, some plans already have been made.

AWAIT CARGOES

Halifax expects its first grain cargoes in mid-November and Saint John is looking for its first winter business about December 1.

Montreal customarily ends its season in the first week of December, but passenger sailings, which must be scheduled in advance, will shift at earlier dates.

Canadian National steamships will transfer West Indies runs to Halifax after November 24, running 18 days cruises with Saint John also a port of call.

Canadian Pacific steamships will land passengers at Saint John for the first time since the waterfront fire of 1931, using a newly-constructed passenger and immigration building.

Both exports and imports are expected to increase this winter, with Saint John anticipating heavy shipments of British automobiles and Halifax already reporting greater trade with the Far East than in 1949.

The grain and lumber shipments are the main exports from the East Coast port.

AORANGI CONCERN

The pending discontinuance of the Canadian-Australasian Line's ship service between New Zealand and Australia and the British Columbia coast has become a major concern of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Some time ago it was announced that the liner Aorangi was to be taken off the trans-Pacific service.

Early next year, the ship was to have the service subsidised by Governments of Canada, Australia and New Zealand, but so far they have met with little success.

"We were wondering," remarked Mr. Hawes, "if one of the larger shipping lines now operating between the United Kingdom and 'Down Under' might call at British Columbia in an extended service."

It was pointed out that one comparatively large industry of the city would suffer as a result of the service cancellation. Pelt & Textiles of Canada Ltd., has been importing all of its wool from "Down Under" aboard the Aorangi.

TO RESTOCK FRASER

The International Pacific Fisheries Commission plans to restock barren sections of the Fraser River salmon spawning grounds.

The commission announced yesterday that 100,000 fingerling sockeye salmon, averaging three inches, will be planted next week in the upper Adams River as part of the vast rehabilitation program.

The commission will also transplant more than 1,000,000 eyed eggs into the upper Adams to assure a successful transfer of the fingerling run.

The Adams River run was a failure this year, resulting in a heavy loss to fishermen, but it will be four years before success of the rehabilitation program is known.

An additional 140,000 fingerlings will be planted at the mouth of the Horsefly River as part of the rehabilitation of the Quenel system, once the most productive area for Fraser River sockeye.

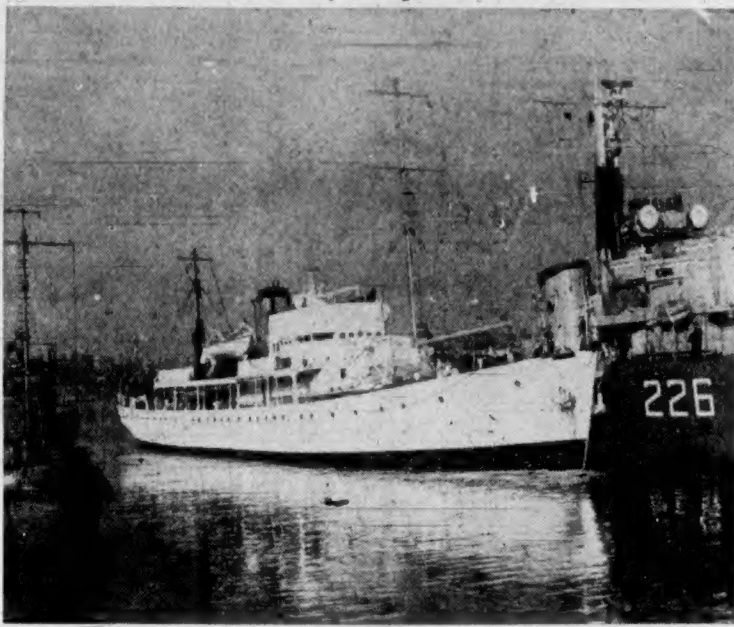

FERRY FOUND

A 180-foot ferry with 19 persons aboard, lost in a heavy fog at the mouth of the Columbia River, was found, far off course but safely anchored, by searching Coast Guard boats yesterday.

The ferry, the M. R. Chessman, was the object of a widespread river search when it failed to arrive on its cross-river live-mile run from Megawash, Wash., to Astoria, Ore., at 7:45 a.m.

Three and a half hours later, a Coast Guard boat sighted the Chessman, 5½ miles down-river from its course, anchored in 24 feet of water. The ferry anchored to await improved visibility.

Ocean Survey Ship Pauses Here On Project for U.K. Admiralty

MARINE AND TRAVEL NEWS

A vast section of the world will be covered by the British hydrographic survey ship H.M.S. Challenger before she returns to her home port in England to complete a three-year survey project now six months old.

The 1,450-ton vessel arrived at Esquimalt early yesterday afternoon, and within several weeks will be heading for the North Pacific to continue her oceanographic studies.

Friendly Cmdr. G. S. Ritchie, officer commanding the 19-year-old vessel, told newspapermen the ship would spend about three weeks in the North Pacific. "We are hoping to be able to spend Christmas at Victoria," he added.

Carrying a total of 95 officers and men, plus four scientists, the Challenger left England May 1, and after conducting a week-long survey in the North Atlantic proceeded to the Bermuda area, where surveys were conducted for almost three months. The ship left Bermuda August 17 for this port, calling at Jamaica for several years ago. They are Robert Lloyd and Lewis Cummins.

Cmdr. Ritchie explained the project currently being carried out is on orders from the British Admiralty. Purpose of the surveys is to learn more of the sea bottom, water conditions and related subjects.

"An exceptionally keen interest in being taken in such matters at the present time," Cmdr. Ritchie noted, "and already several nations have made or are conducting similar surveys."

After completing the North Pacific phase of the study, the Challenger will continue operations in the South Pacific. The ship will be away from England for approximately three years.

Cab-drivers in London, England, work entirely on commission and tips, getting up to 40 per cent of receipts.

New Zealand Hampered By Port Delay Problems

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Nov. 3 CP.—Before the war overseas vessels could turn around in New Zealand ports in less than three weeks. Now they spend an average of more than seven weeks on the New Zealand coast and the increased delay is one of the major problems of a Royal Commission set up to examine all aspects of waterfront work in New Zealand. Even in the past year the average time spent in port has increased from 40 to 81 days. It is part of a broader problem. Ever since the war the waterfronts have been the most disturbed section of the New Zealand industrial scheme. There have been constant disputes and stoppages, repeated demands by longshoremen for increased pay, and of course the ever-longer delay in turn-around. The disputes culminated in two waterfront strikes recently, the second of which was openly called by Prime Minister Sidney Holland "part and parcel of the cold war being waged throughout the world."

The Royal Commission will have to judge between widely divergent views. Some interests tend to place the major blame on the watersiders, claiming that they are handling less cargo, causing unnecessary stoppages over trifling grievances, bringing in new restrictive practices, increasing the time spent on breaks for morning and afternoon tea and the like, abusing the "spelling" system under which only part of a gang works while the remainder rests, and show a "grave lack of responsibility and goodwill. They allege that among the union leaders are men who constantly break solemn undertakings to abide by agreements.

The longshoremen on the other hand blame unsuitable equipment and sheds, congestion at the docks, shortage of railway wagons to handle cargo, delays in removing goods from sheds, and numerous other causes. The waterfront industry commission in its latest report points out that larger vessels bringing heavier cargoes have contributed to the longer time spent in port, and supports the claim that shortage of berthing space, shed accommodation and other facilities to handle cargo, has contributed to the delays.

The Royal Commission will have to decide to what extent these various factors have contributed to the slower turn-around of ships, and will also have the task of recommending ways of restoring harmony to the waterfront. The slower turn-around and recurrent stoppages have already resulted in shipping companies imposing a surcharge of 7½ per cent on freight to Auckland, and other ports are in danger of having a similar impost added. The Auckland surcharge has been temporarily suspended until the Royal Commission's findings are known.

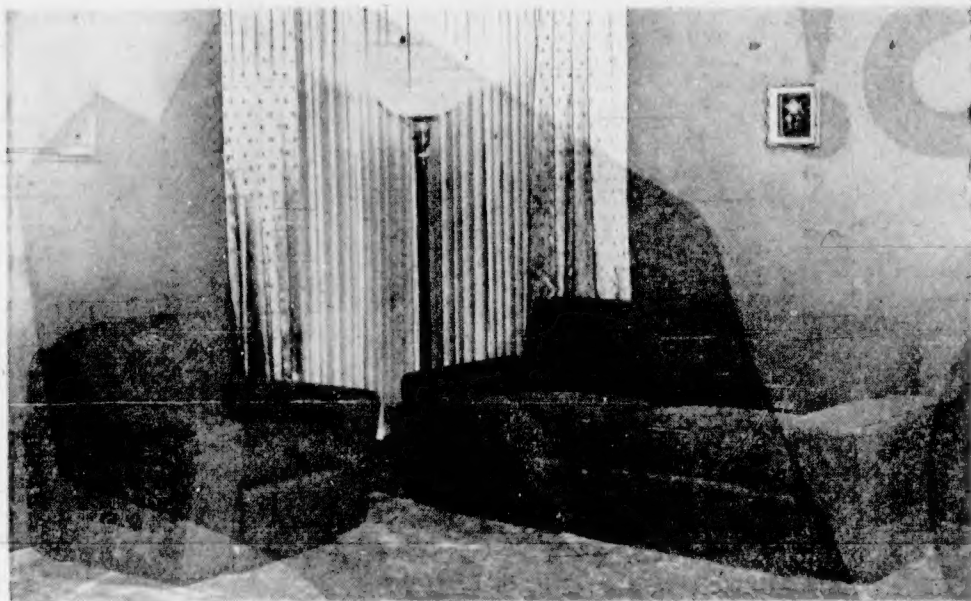

The existing waterfront set-up differs from that existing in other New Zealand industries. The powerful and militant waterside workers' union has a limited membership and can be entered only by election. Its chief officers are not Communists, though there are Communists holding high office. However it is affiliated with the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions. Members of the union have complete preference in the employment of labor, and non-unionists can be engaged when no more unionists are available. So powerful is the union that employees almost never engage non-unionists, while the union is on strike. The union has won for its members a "best" wage higher than that ruling for skilled tradesmen in other industries. A Canadian citizen automatically ceases to be such after living outside Canada for six consecutive years.
